BOARD HOLDS SHORT SESSION

Little Business of Importance Considered.

PLANS ORDERED DRAWN

For Pavilion and Bandstand at Lincoln Park.

Board of Health Gives Murphy and Leffler Two Days in Which to Perfect Improvements

Little business of real importance was considered at a short session of the board of public service held last night. The park question was again brought up and the proposition of building a pavilion and band stand at Lincoln park was discussed. Local architect J. J. Sloan was authorized to draw up a set of plans for the construction of the stand and pavilion and present them to the board at its next meeting. The board accepted the bonds and contracts of Hostetter and Dawson for the construction of the stone bridge at McKinley park and the building of street crossings. After discussing a number of minor points of business adjournment was called.

HEALTH BOARD.

The board of health authorized Health Officer Lutz to give W. H. Murphy just two days to abate the nuisance on his property on West Center street. Murphy has a number of buildings in the extreme west end where unsanitary conditions exist and the matter has been troubling the board for some time. Murphy has been notified a dozen times to abate the nuisance but all to no avail.

The board also authorized the health officer to give J. G. Leffler two days to clean up and place in sanitary condition his property at the corner of State and Church streets.

Two cases of typhoid fever were reported as existing in the city.

COMET IS VISIBLE ABOUT THREE O'CLOCK

Marion People Enjoy the Pretty Sight.

Strange Phenomenon Is Said to be One of the Most Interesting Ever Witnessed.

COMET m f m (lnd)— h f m f m

Have you seen the comet? All you have to do to get a glimpse at the phenomenon is to crawl out of bed at 3 o'clock in the morning and take a look at the eastern horizon. Or better still, why not entertain a little party of your friends at a "comet party", something new and novel, and furnish entertainment to keep your guests awake until the time arrives for looking at the comet. Possibly by that time other things besides comets will be floating before your vision. At any rate every one will be able to say that he at least made an effort to see this strange heavenly visitor.

It is located in the far east and during the past few nights has been visible for only a few minutes during the early morning. At about that time the head stands directly above the trees and house-tops in the East and the tail, which spreads upward toward the South. Those who have seen the phenomenon say that it is one of the prettiest sights that the heavens have produced in years.

Just how long the comet will be visible is hard to conjecture. It may be that before tomorrow morning it will have sunk out of sight and that those who take the trouble to get up and look will be disappointed. There's nothing like taking a chance, however, and if the comet is still visible those who see it will be well repaid.

Tonight, dance in Schwinger's hall.

COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE BEING LARGELY ATTENDED

Every Session Sees an Increase in the Enrollment—Teachers From all Over the County are Enjoying the Instructive and Entertaining Lectures Delivered by Dr. Gordy and Prof. Albert—Present Institute Conceded to be the Best Ever Conducted in Marion County.

The main room of the local high school building was crowded to its full capacity Tuesday afternoon, during the session of the city and county teachers' institute. A very large number of visitors were present and enjoyed the program of the afternoon.

The county teachers' male quartet was present and rendered a selection. The quartet responded to an encore and was in turn loudly applauded. Miss Marie Stevens of this city, gave a piano solo after which Dr. Gordy began his address upon "History." The speaker continued his lecture upon the same subject given Monday afternoon, dealing with the theories of Thomas Jefferson. President Jefferson believed that the people were capable of governing themselves and that all domestic matters should be in the hands of general government.

However, when the opportunity came for purchasing the vast region then known as Louisiana, he was compelled to give up his theories and acknowledge his failure. Dr. Gordy paid a glowing tribute to the "Sage of Monticello" in that he trampled his own theories under foot and looked to the best interests of the people and government. In closing his address the speaker urged that the teachers have some one thing on which to think and study closely and the study of the administration of Jefferson afforded in this line a rare opportunity. After a recess of ten minutes the institute was again favored with a selection by the male quartet, after which Professor Albert spoke upon "A Positive View of Geography." The speaker besides giving the teachers valuable material in regard to the study of geography, gave a few of his own opinions as to how a school should be conducted. Mr. Albert did not believe it to be the duty of the teacher to feed the pupil with knowledge but to arouse the interest of the pupil and make him hungry for wider research and study. He deplored the fact that eight readers are used in the schools, saying that three should be sufficient. The child could then spend its time in reading books of history, geography and biography. Mr. Albert vividly described many scenes of interest in natural history and held the attention of his hearers closely.

The remainder of the afternoon was taken up with the question box. Questions were asked by this means covering a wide scope in the teachers' work. Much interest was created by the various questions, they dealing with such subjects as nature study history and literature. At the opening of the institute the professor queried the teachers as to why they were attending the institute, whether they were merely attending for pay received rather than for their benefit educationally. One of the teachers today used the question box to inquire of the Professor why he was attending it and whether it was for bread and butter. The question amused the teachers very much. However, Mr. Albert assured them that he was present for his own and their benefit. At the same time he fully appreciated the remuneration given him.

WEDNESDAY MORNING. The session opened with devotional exercises after which Dr. Gordy delivered another of his interesting lectures on history. The attendance at this session was marked by a slight increase over Tuesday.

Dr. Gordy continued his exposition of Jefferson's policies having taken up the theme in his lecture Tuesday afternoon. He declared that President Jefferson had the idea that war could be prevented by commercial restrictions. The speaker showed the fallacy in this belief stating that when Jefferson restricted commerce he injured the United States more than any other nation because the relationship between the nations was reciprocal.

President Jefferson, in order to successfully carry out the embargo act, said the speaker found it necessary to centralize power which was the very thing he had been trying to prevent, he believing that the power should be vested in the states.

Following a short recess, Prof. Albert talked for thirty minutes imparting in his usually interesting manner some of the underlying principles of teaching. He divided his lecture into three parts. First, he described the fundamental laws of the mind, describing in detail the difference between the brain of man and that of animals. In the second place he took up the principle of education explaining that we learn by learning how to do rather than by the effort of doing. In the last place the speaker referred to the method of learning. He declared that the reason why there are so few successful teachers is because the average one does not use any method in his or her work. A teacher must be thorough systematic and definite, said Mr. Albert in concluding.

The closing address of the session was made by Dr. Gordy. The speaker concluded his discussion of the first talk on Jefferson's policies.

The program Wednesday afternoon consisted of special music two lectures by Prof. Albert, a question box and a talk by Dr. Gordy.

Honoring her guest Miss Geneva Brockelsby, of Barbara, California, Miss Bertha Cozad entertained a company of guests numbering about fifteen at her home on Blaine avenue yesterday evening. AUTO DOES BUCKING ACT

Spoils Sale for Angry Owner.

NAUGHTY LITTLE BUZZER

When it Buzzed, Buzzed with a Vengeance.

Antics of the Automobile Would Put to Shame the Stunts of a Western Broncho.

He had found his big touring car an unprofitable investment. After mortgaging his farm east of the city he discovered that he had an elephant on his hands. His income was not sufficient to keep the machine repaired and properly fed with gasoline and as a last resort he had decided to sell out to a friend.

The farmer and his prospective purchaser whirled down South State street, Tuesday afternoon and stopped in front of the Magruder block to talk with an acquaintance. Then the man who was tire of automobilizing got out to start the "buzzer."

Something went wrong with the crank. He cranked and cranked, and then cranked some more. And still the buzzer buzzed not. Formidable drops of perspiration stood out on the autoist's face and splashed on his already badly wilted collar.

"D—H— ???? zzz," was the style of his conversation, addressed chiefly at the crank.

Finally the buzzer started. So abruptly in fact that the discouraged autoist was unprepared. The crank flew out of his hands rapped him on the nose an right eye and whirled down toward Church street.

While the autoist was picking himself out of the gutter in front of Pierson's tailoring shop the auto began to cut capers. It jumped up and down like a bucking broncho. Then it turned partly around and made a spasmodic lunge toward the entrance of the Grand Opera house. The man who had thought of buying the machine was still on board trying to figure out where it would all end.

At last the machine brought up against the curbing and the prospective purchaser jumped out unhurt.

"I don't know what's the matter; the thing never acted that way before," mumbled the man who wanted to sell. His nose was cut and bleeding and his right eye was enveloped in darkness.

"It certainly balked some then," remarked the prospective purchaser, dubiously viewing the fractious car as it gazed tremulously at his friend's darkened optic and bleeding face.

They finally managed to run the machine to a neighboring doctor's office, where the farmer from east of town had his face repaired. Then he went home alone and the man who had been a prospective buyer went out to look for a horse and buggy.

STREET FIGHT RESULTS SERIOUSLY

William Voorhees Has Lower Jaw Broken.

Rolla Millisor Lands on His Oppen-With Telling Effect During the Fracas.

Because of alleged slurring remarks which Rolla Millisor is said to have made concerning a young lady friend of William Voorhees, of East Center street, the two came to blows on an up-town street late Tuesday night. During the rix-up, Voorhees had his lower jaw broken. He went to a surgeon's office, where his injury was given attention.

The two young men met in front of the Colonial restaurant on East Center street, Saturday night, and were mixing things up there when friends separated them. Again Tuesday night the quarrel was renewed and Voorhees was injured during the battle.

Dance tonight in Schwinger's hall.
